78 no-mining zones in EO

It's centerpiece of P-Noy's Executive Order 79

By Gil C. Cabanogon

PRESIDENT Aquino has expanded the "no-go" mining zones in the country to include 78 tourism sites, and farms, marine sanctuaries and island ecosystems in response to the public clamor to protect the environment from mining.

The identification of more mine-free areas in the country is the centerpiece of the administration's mining reform program under Executive Order No. 79, which the President signed on July 6. A copy of the order was released yesterday.

"One of the most important provisions here is Section 1, expanding to effect the areas close to mining," Environment Secretary Ramon Paje said at a press briefing in Malacañang. "We call them the 'no-go' zones. Before this EO, the 'no-go' zones were confined [to] the protected areas."

Other highlights of the executive order:

- Monitoring on the grant of new mining agreements and Congress shall have come up with a revenue-sharing scheme between the government and mining firms.
- Continuity of relations with national banks.
- Confining small-scale mining to designated areas to be called "Mining Bays."
- Review and possible renegotiation of existing contracts.

LIGHT IN THE TUNNEL Under EO 79, small-scale miners like this one in Ilogos, Benguet province, will be confined to the "Mining Bays" and banned from using mercury to process the mined ores.

Antimining advocates cheer, but...

By the Inquirer Staff

ARDENT antimining advocates Gina Lopez cheered President Aquino for making a stand to protect the environment by explicitly identifying in Executive Order No. 79 the areas banned from mining.

However, Lopez said the President must address how existing mining contracts not affected by the order would be treated "especially if they run smack in the middle of a tourism area or agricultural land."

"Whose interests will prevail—the miners or the farmers?" asked Lopez in a phone interview.

Environment Secretary Ramon Paje said there were no existing mining operations in the

PH reefs at risk: It makes exec cry

By Kristine L. Alon

NEARLY all the reefs in the Coral Triangle, the waters that surround six countries in Southeast Asia and the Western Pacific, are in decline, and the Philippines is leading in reef degradation, endangering its economy and food supply.

According to a study by the World Resources Institute (WRI) called Reefs at Risk, about 95 percent of the reefs in the Coral Triangle, a biodiversity hot spot, are in peril.

The threats to the region—which covers the waters of the Philippines, Indonesia, Malaysia, Timor-Leste, Papua New Guinea, and Solomon Islands—come from overfishing, watershed pollution and coastal development.

Asean chief goal: Code of conduct with China

AS FOREIGN ministers met in the Cambodian capital Phnom Penh, Prime Minister Ben Sin said hammering out a code of conduct with China is the top priority in the dispute over a shelf plot for the 17-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean).

Tensions over competing claims in the West Philippine Sea (South China Sea) provisions to be the last item on the agenda, particularly later in the week when US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and her Chinese counterpart, Yang Jichai, are among regional participants, including Japan and the Korea, for the security-focused Asian Regional Forum (ARF).

Both the Asean and China are committed to developing a code of conduct for the West Philippine Sea, Asean Secretary-General Nita Pertierra said yesterday.

Wake-upper: Pagcor cuts billion-peso coffee expenses by half

By Philip C. Tubasa

AFTER giving President Aquino sleepless nights when he found out that it had spent P1 billion on coffee for 10 years, the Philippine Gaming Corp. (Pagcor) has slashed by half the cost of the free beverage it serves casino patrons across the country.

Manuel Bautista, Pagcor assistant VP for Corporate Communications, said the state-gaming corporation has switched to locally grown beans to reduce its annual coffee expenses from P100 million annually to "just around P40 million to P50 million."

Sparks gain Singapore Cup semis

By Colby T. Tapan

SINGAPORE—The intense use of United Football League side Sparks' roster in the Singapore Cup semifinal weekend high-lights the team's dedication to a unified front over a million kilometers of travel.

The full-time team, James Thompson and John Morales led the Sparks to a 2-0 victory in the second leg of the Asian Super Division, completing a 3-3 triumph on aggregate for the first Filipino side to complete the tournament.

The win sent the Sparks, who scored up ahead in the 10th minute, to a showdown with Singapore League powerhouse Tampines Rovers in the semifinals, something that was the first week of Thailand.

"This is a big step for the club football in the Philippines," said Sparks' manager Ron Remy, who is also president of the CFL. "This sends a message to the league that there is a real-life league in the Philippines."

Both teams attracted the biggest crowd of the tournament so far with some 3,000 coming up. But the prospects already looked grim for the Rovers side after the Sparks scored 2-0 early in the first leg Thursday.

Ignored on by a huge Filipino gallery, the Sparks ended up the early pressure from the champion Rovers team, before coming to life on their chance on the counterattack to tie the score up in the 70th minute.

Sparks had to stretch a weary back, with Remy's manager saying "this is the second half and also hitting the post twice."

"We're very proud of the team," said Thompson, who was also part of the national team that should have been in the group by reaching the AFF Suzuki Cup semifinals in Hanoi.

"We came into this tournament as underdogs, but we are working together."

The Sparks' assistant manager, Carlos Thompson, and assistant manager, Carlos Thompson, said the team's success was a result of the team's hard work and dedication.

Morales ended up being named the best player of the tournament, leading on a 2-0 victory in the first leg, and then scoring the winning goal in the second leg.

It was Morales' first goal in the 2009 season as he followed up his second header of a black horseman last fall.

Baby of woman who cut womb open died of negligence

By Juanito I. Andueza

THE STORY of the 26-year-old woman who reportedly performed a cesarean section on her own in her home in the city of Manila, died not long after she gave birth to her son, who died of complications.

SPED: Health Gals of the Manila Medical Center (MMC) hospital said that the woman, who was 26 years old, died of complications after she gave birth to her son, who died of complications.

After pulling the baby out of her womb, the woman apparently wrapped her daughter in a blanket and hid her son from the hospital staff, who found him dead in her home.

Asked if the information would lead to the filing of an indictment against the doctor, Gals said that investigators had issued an arrest warrant for the doctor, who was 40 years old.

At the same time, investigators said that the woman had come to the hospital with a blood-soaked cloth in her hand, which she used to wipe her face and the face of her son.

According to the local police report, the woman, a self-proclaimed nurse, was 26 years old and was married to a 30-year-old man.

Gals said that they found it quite hard to believe that anyone would be capable of performing such a risky procedure on a pregnant woman.

He said the police have been able to get some information from the woman herself and her relatives.

"They related to us some questions and answers as to their lives," Gals said, adding that the woman said that she was a self-proclaimed nurse and that she was a graduate of a nursing school.

Meanwhile, the woman's current physician, who was 40 years old, was also arrested, although the results had yet to be released.

Gals said that they were investigating the doctor in the hospital under the provisions that relate to the doctor's responsibility for the death of the patient.

Egypt leader reconvenes dissolved parliament

CAIRO—President Mohamed Morsi of Egypt on Monday reconvened parliament, a move that ended a period of political chaos in the country's history.

Morsi's move appeared to be a bold effort to restore order to the Egyptian political scene, and to end a period of political chaos that had been brewing since the dissolution of parliament in 2001.

The speaker of the parliament said Morsi would meet with the military and police leaders to discuss the emergency situation.

Morsi said he would meet with the military and police leaders to discuss the emergency situation.

The military council dissolved parliament in 2001 after a vote to elect Morsi as president. The council said it was necessary to dissolve parliament to ensure the stability of the country.

THE GOVERNMENT expects some help for the one-year treasury bill in year-end's auction, as it doomed the interest rate, says it is likely to be unreasonably high.

It is, however, apparently pleased with the market's appetite for the three- and six-month bills.

The U.S. Title Index, which is published by the U.S. Copyright Office, is a listing of all the titles that have been published in the U.S. since 1977. The 303-day yield ended 2.02% percent, down by 50 basis points from 2.52%

Demand for the six-month debt paper was also strong, with markets rising 15.05 ticks. The auction eventually accepted only 10.2 ticks of the bid, leaving its buyers with a loss.

The 364-day T-bills ended 2.408 percent, up by 3.8 basis points from the previous 3.47 percent. The rate could have been higher if the market committee accepted the amount it was supposed to raise from the sale of the one-year debt paper.

total just $1.2 billion worth of the new-year bills, compared with the $4 billion announced.

National Treasury Robert Eise said bond holders may be asked to do more, and the newly government cutbacks because of record double economic downturns.

The move last week by Standard & Poor's raises the country's credit rating from two notches to just one notch below investment grade facilitated the appetite of investors for government-secured instruments, economic researchers add.

PHILIPPINE output is expected to rise 6.5% in 2008, according to a report by the Asian Development Bank (ADB). The report, released last week, says that the Philippines is one of the few Asian economies that are expected to grow faster than the region's average of 5.5%.

The ADB report says that the Philippines' growth is driven by a combination of factors, including a strong manufacturing sector, a growing services sector, and a rising construction sector. The report also notes that the Philippines' infrastructure is improving, which is helping to attract foreign investment.

However, the report also points out some challenges that the Philippines faces, including a high unemployment rate and a growing debt burden. Despite these challenges, the ADB remains optimistic about the Philippines' economic prospects for the coming year.

The ADB report is based on data from the Philippines' government and other sources. It is a key indicator of the country's economic health and is widely cited by investors and analysts.

Meralco rates to rise this month

By Scott Lee

PHILIPPINE electric utility Meralco is expected to raise its rates this month, according to a report by the Asian Development Bank (ADB).

The ADB report says that Meralco's rates are currently below the cost of service, which is leading to a growing financial deficit. The report also notes that Meralco's infrastructure is aging, which is increasing its maintenance costs.

Meralco's rates are expected to rise by 10% in 2008, according to the ADB report. This is a significant increase, but it is necessary to cover the utility's rising costs and to ensure that it can continue to provide reliable service to its customers.

Meralco's rates are also expected to rise in 2009, according to the ADB report. This is due to the utility's continued investment in infrastructure and the rising cost of fuel for its power plants.

Meralco's rates are a key factor in the country's electricity market. They are also a major concern for consumers, who are facing rising electricity bills. The ADB report suggests that the government should consider ways to help Meralco cover its costs, such as by providing subsidies or by allowing it to raise its rates more gradually.

A former executive of the United Franchise Group, a leading franchisor, has resigned from his position as president of the company, citing a disagreement over the company's franchise strategy. The resignation comes as the company faces scrutiny from investors and regulators regarding its franchise practices.

The resignation of [Name] from the United Franchise Group is a significant event in the company's history. [Name] had been a key figure in the company's expansion and growth. His departure is expected to have a major impact on the company's future plans and operations.

The United Franchise Group has a long and successful history in the franchising industry. However, recent developments have raised questions about the company's governance and financial practices. The resignation of [Name] is just one of the challenges the company is currently facing.

Investors and analysts are closely watching the situation at the United Franchise Group. They are concerned about the company's ability to maintain its competitive edge and its commitment to its franchisees. The company's response to these challenges will be crucial in determining its future success.

Plan holders demand PFI shares as compensation

By Robert D. Hawkins

Employees of a major corporation are demanding that the company provide them with shares of PFI (Public Financial Institutions) as compensation for their services. The employees argue that the company has not adequately rewarded them for their contributions and that providing shares would be a more equitable form of compensation.

The company has rejected the employees' demands, stating that it is not in a position to provide shares at this time. The company claims that it is already providing competitive salaries and benefits to its employees. However, the employees remain dissatisfied and are considering further action.

The dispute between the employees and the company highlights the challenges of compensation in the current economic environment. Both sides are making strong arguments, and a resolution is not yet in sight. The situation could have significant implications for the company's reputation and financial performance.

As the dispute continues, investors and the public are watching closely. They are interested in how the company handles the situation and whether it will eventually agree to provide shares. The outcome of this dispute will likely influence the company's stock price and its relationship with its employees.

Share prices decline

Share prices for several major companies have declined significantly in recent weeks. Analysts attribute this to a combination of factors, including economic uncertainty and concerns about corporate earnings. Investors are becoming more cautious, leading to a sell-off in the stock market.

The decline in share prices has led to a loss of confidence among investors. Many are questioning the value of their investments and are looking for ways to protect their portfolios. The market is expected to remain volatile in the near future.

Despite the decline, some analysts believe that the market is overreacting to the current situation. They predict that share prices will eventually recover as the economy stabilizes and corporate earnings improve. However, others remain pessimistic.

5 foreign banks

Five major foreign banks have announced plans to expand their operations in the United States. The banks are looking for new investment opportunities and to serve the growing needs of American businesses. This move is expected to increase competition in the U.S. banking sector.

DOING GREAT AT 8

Doing great things together as One City with One Vision

VISION

A highly developed premier city of South Luzon that is dynamic and progressive with pro-active and efficient governance.

Being a role model at perpetuating progress as Triang Luzon in its growth, progress as it may manifest at maturing parameters.

MISSION

Attain total human development through an integrated strategy anchored on poverty alleviation, capacity-building, promotion of health and wellness, and maintenance of a peaceful community.

Implementing pre-agreed-upon initiatives to ensure the attainment of the vision through the following: (1) maintaining the peace and order, (2) promoting the economic growth, (3) improving the social services, (4) enhancing the infrastructure, and (5) promoting the environment.

OUR PERFORMANCE PLEDGE

We, the officials and employees of the City Government of Santa Rosa, commit to:

- Serve promptly, efficiently and with utmost courtesy;
- Take action and respond to and complaint without delay;
- Abide strictly with service standards;
- Respond to queries, comments and suggestions promptly;
- Open access to information regarding policies, programs, activities, and services;
- Grant and abide by our mandate, vision and mission;
- Advocate for reforms against graft and corruption, and eliminate all forms of bureaucratic red tape.

MAYOR ALVINER MOLLAS

It was eight years to this day when there was one, when the people of Santa Rosa, Laguna, decided to become a city. On July 10, 1954, the law which converted the Municipality of Santa Rosa into a component city of the Province of Laguna became the City of Santa Rosa. Through those eight years, the City of Santa Rosa has achieved milestones that have placed the city among the best cities in the Philippines to live in, to invest in and to visit.

In those eight years, Mayor Alviner B. Mollas has served six years as the head of the executive of the City of Santa Rosa. And in all of those six years, the City of Santa Rosa and its people have done wonderful and remarkable things together. The City and its people have accomplished much... they have done more than expected. In fact, in its eighth year as a city, the people of the City of Santa Rosa are all prepared to see that WE ARE DOING GREAT AT 8.

A year of greatness

Truly this has been a year of greatness. Mayor Alviner said at the year 2011, which was capped by major recognition for the City of Santa Rosa.

The year 2011 was highlighted by the highest honor a government official can receive in the profession of his duty. Mayor Alviner is now included in the list of public leaders who are "models of honesty, excellence and integrity in public service" after the late former Presidential Lingkod Bayan Award in November 9, 2011 at the Alad Commercial Hall of Makati-Metro.

The award is a testament to the fact that the City Government of Santa Rosa is committed to achieving the vision and mission for the city. It is a recognition that the City Government is doing what it should do.

While Mayor Alviner received the highest accolade, the year was capped by another important milestone. On June 1, 2011, the City of Santa Rosa was awarded the first level of transparency and accountability. The Department of Internal and Local Government said the list of Good Housekeeping was awarded to the City of Santa Rosa for achieving the first level of transparency and accountability.

In January 2012, the City was included among the top 100 cities in the Philippines cited in the top 100 cities for its performance in the following categories: (1) transparency, (2) accountability, (3) efficiency, (4) effectiveness, (5) innovation, (6) leadership, (7) vision, (8) mission, (9) strategy, and (10) results.

Increasing revenues, increasing benefits

Under Mayor Alviner's effective leadership of the City Government, the most significant and well-known municipality in terms of revenue is now included in the top 100 cities in the Philippines as it is the center of numerous revenue-generating activities. And it is one of the best places to live in the Philippines due to its commitment to becoming a hub in education and communication technology.

Revenue continues to benefit from the gains of a vibrant economy. A high rate of employment, a vigorous trade and commercial sector, a robust health sector, a robust education, a robust environment, a robust housing and quality education, efficient and appropriate medical services, all of which respond to the needs of the community.

And the benefits will increase as the City starts implementing the new Code of Ordinances, the new Code of the City of Santa Rosa.

The new revenue code revised the 1992 Revenue Code, which has not been updated nor revised for 14 years.

Mayor Alviner said that the present version of the Revenue Code (RC) is outdated and the City Government is now in the process of revising it. The new RC will be issued by the Department of Internal and Local Government (DILG) and the Department of Finance (DOF).

Colina during the awarding of Presidential Lingkod Bayan Award yesterday November 9, 2011 at the Alad Commercial Hall of Makati-Metro.

Good Housekeeping Award - The City Government of Santa Rosa was awarded the Good Housekeeping Award by the Department of Interior and Local Government last December 11, 2011. Gov. Jesse Robredo personally awarded the Good Housekeeping Award to the City of Santa Rosa.

Consistent Regional Outstanding Winner in Performance (CRDWP) Award. Through the city's innovative programs for sustainable development, the City of Santa Rosa was able to maintain its Good Housekeeping Award (GHA) for the year 2011 and received the Consistent Regional Outstanding Winner in Performance (CRDWP) Award last November 2011. The City also received the Best Year (BYA) Award last November 2011.

No Smoking Campaign. To have a model for a smoke-free city, this is the primary goal of the City Government of Santa Rosa as it launched its No Smoking Campaign last March 24.

The creative requires all personnel, cities and the Municipality of Paterno, Mayor Arilla to prepare the schedule of Mayor Arilla's Office of Social Property and to conduct the Central Bureau of Property Assessment in their respective jurisdiction.

She said that the general revision was a necessary management for Santa Rosa's economy in the city. She said that for 13 years business taxes and charges have not increased, and for 11 years the schedule of Mayor Arilla (SRR) was not revised.

Maintaining strong public-private partnership

Of course, these efforts of the City Government of Santa Rosa would not happen without the aid of our tax payers. This is why I am thankful that for paying their dues and for their continued confidence in the City's ability to meet their needs, whether they are investors or residents, said Mayor Arilla.

The city always has its taxpayers in its mind. A strong public-private sector partnership has always been the hallmark of the administration Mayor Arilla. According to her, the success of the city's business in terms of business and realty tax payments and corporate social responsibility programs have provided the city government the capacity and capability to provide economic services for the residents and various infrastructure projects.

Mayor Arilla established a strong foundation on which both economic progress and social development could stand on. She was able to do this because of the efficiency to increase collection, which, during her term, equally increased resulting to the acceptance of budgeting of the city's various programs and projects.

Because of its sound policies and efficient management, Santa Rosa's confidence increased. This resulted in the infusion of new capital for innovation and the expansion of operations promoting business. As such, despite the global financial crisis, the local economy of the City of Santa Rosa remained strong and stable.

In essence, the city recognizes the contributions of taxpayers through the Annual Outstanding Taxpayers Awards. In the awards, the top twenty real property taxpayers and top twenty business taxpayers are given appreciation for their contribution to the city's economic growth and sustainable and vibrant progress of taxes.

This year the awards will be held on July 10, 2012 at the City Government of Santa Rosa in the main hall.

Establishing mechanisms for transparency, accountability, participation and efficiency

In October 2007, during her first 100 days in office, Mayor Arilla declared her vision of governance. She said, "The role of government will be participation and the services to be provided will be to increase, reorganizing policies to give dignity and respect to our people who deserve more than just compensation and pay service but also transparency, diversity and social services." Indeed, she has done this.

Mayor Arilla has always been committed to transparency, accountability, participation, efficiency in governance and the national reform and the transparency is what is to be effective in delivering services to our people.

The Civil Service Commission has recognized the City of Santa Rosa as a Model City of Governance in the area of good governance in line with RA 9482 or amended Super Act of 2007. In accordance with this, the City now has the Civil Service Commission, a transparency and efficiency result that serves as a guide to residents and visitors on how to access key city government services.

Mayor Arilla also institutionalized participatory transparency and accountability governance, through the establishment of the City of Santa Rosa People's Council, which ensures that the members, for consultation in place, opening the doors for people participation in governance.

Facebook can make you fat

By Michelle Mendez
Contributor

FOR LIFE social networking sites like Twitter, Facebook and blogs to virtually "connect" with people, updating status with regular news reports and giving (and receiving) feedback about them. However, working sites really provide us with what we personally, professionally and socially need—and everything else.

Negative impact

However, we should also be aware of the negative impact of social networking in our life. Working on these sites takes us much of our time, especially if you have no social skills. And, since we have passed comments about our thoughts and actions.

Recent studies and studies worldwide have shown how social networking sites like Facebook can cause a negative perception of your body and weight when comparing your photos with the photos of friends. Facebook users usually post photos of themselves in their best body shape and angles. People with self-censor and body image issues can become easily affected by these best-in-every-photo images, just like when seeing photos of models and celebrities in magazines, newspapers and movies. According to mental health specialists, people get more affected by Facebook photos of others because they are real, as photographed photos of people they know like family members and friends.

Statistics

Results of an online survey for 500 Facebook users age 18-40 found that the researchers at Center for Eating Disorders at Sheppard Pratt in Baltimore show that:

- 54 percent were more conscious of their body and weight after looking at photos of themselves;
- 44 percent said they had the same body or weight as a friend when checking their own photos;
- 30 percent had that they need to alter some parts of their body when they saw part of their bodies in their friends';
- 21 percent feel that when comparing their own Facebook photos to their friends' photos;
- 11 percent have provoked themselves from eating specific food items, food groups or eating altogether to feel to some extent to control their weight;
- 17 percent have stopped to binge-eat;
- 12 percent have or have had an eating disorder (such as anorexia or bulimia);
- 7 percent have tried purging (such as vomiting or laxatives);
- And only 25 percent are happy with their present weight.

Higher percent of the respondents visit Facebook more a day and more than half of them log-on more than once a day. The results that compare Facebook use may affect one's body image, and even lead to weight obsession and preoccupations, unhealthy dieting practices and eating disorders in results of social communication Facebook posts. Both young and old can be negatively affected.

Breakthrough procedure gives hope to heart patients

HEARTS with severe aortic valve disease have new hope as effective treatment through the advanced medical procedure known as Transcatheter Aortic Valve Replacement (TAVI) which are now being done at St. Luke's Medical Center. From January to this year, the hospital has performed over 300 procedures with a 100 percent success rate.

TAVI is a minimally invasive procedure designed to treat aortic valve disease, a condition of the aortic valve, the main pump of the heart, improves the pumping effectiveness of the heart, improves the quality of life and prolongs life. Aortic disease is commonly a result of severe atherosclerosis and degeneration, which causes aortic valve narrowing and causes or heart dysfunction to the elderly.

Guided by highly experienced interventional cardiologist Felix Enriquez R. Poma and interventional cardiologist, a leading cardiovascular surgeon, the St. Luke's TAVI team is composed of leading Filipino cardiac interventionalists, cardiac imaging specialists, critical care team and well-trained interventional laboratory personnel as well as cardiac care nurses.

The St. Luke's team performs complete TAVI procedure this second half of 2012. The intervention will save the hospital and its team of physicians the certification as interventional TAVI intervention as they can perform treatment without the process of a process.

With this certification, St. Luke's will be included among select international hospitals certified as TAVI centers. In South East Asia, St. Luke's is one of a handful of hospitals in Hong Kong, Malaysia, Singapore and Thailand that offers TAVI.

While open heart surgery is still considered the gold standard for the management of severe aortic valve disease. In fact, a study this year conducted by professors at the University of Florida shows that the most frequent in adolescents (14-17 years age) TAVI, spreads on Facebook, the most common of developing various eating disorders and negative body image.

How to use Facebook to avoid body image and self-esteem issues:

- If you usually get affected by Facebook photos of your friends as they show their best life and body photos, take a break and observe how it shows in your thoughts and actions. This takes time and effort to reduce your body and weight issues by talking to a counselor. Finally, based on it someone you feel comfortable about your concerns with.

- Instead of social networking, engage in activities that will improve your body image, like exercising that will make you feel good about yourself (yoga, yoga, stretching) and making will help looks that will modify your thinking.

- Always put in mind that your own thoughts and feelings are important to your overall health. Remember that you will not allow updates and photos of others to cause your own internal negative reactions.

- Learn to manage your time when using Facebook. Use a calendar and put your time and/or check updates you find meaningful and important to you.

- Avoid focusing too much on physical appearance and interventions that include weight, dieting, too much dieting and over-exercising. Still your attention to your feelings and thoughts. Say "Wow you look so happy and fulfilled spending your weekend with your family has inspired me!" instead of, "You look so thin and very in your shape!"

- Instead of allowing yourself to feel insecure about others' looks and accomplishments, remember your thoughts. Believe that you can always be at your best without comparing yourself to others. Believe you, be an inspiration to others.

• Finally, be involved in your children's active activities. The study conducted by the University of Florida shows that parents who were aware of their adolescent daughter's media usage showed more personal empowerment of their daughters, leading to a protective guard against eating disorder.

Stones may tour again...

info that suggests the band may be planning a tour in the future. The band's manager, Peter Dinklage, told the Los Angeles Times that the band is "not planning a tour at the moment." However, Dinklage did not rule out the possibility of a tour in the future.

Longevity

Despite the criticism, the band have continued to perform regularly over the years, although their live shows have been less than stellar. The band's longevity can be attributed to their ability to adapt to the changing tastes of their audience, as well as their consistent output of new music.

They would be expected to continue to produce new music, but it is unclear if they will tour again.

LEGIONER... Most London shoppers rush by the Oxford Street window without a second glance. But it isn't here 90 years ago that The Rolling Stones played their first gig and changed the landscape of pop music forever.

1962 Juggers Keith Richards and Brian Auger played The Hungers Club on July 12, 1962, with these names, the first time they performed under the band name which would become famous. —

Childhood friends Rapper and Richards were just 24 at the time and Jones, who drowned in the swimming pool at his home in 1986, was 22.

But it was at the club, now a branch of Windsor Park, that the seeds were sown of worldwide success which, half a century on, has seen the British Isles' match capture 200 millions, stream sales globally.

From the 'I Can't Get No' Anthology, "Sungie Jack Flash" and "Brown Sugar" are legendary rock & rollers in a class with the charts.

The band's constant popularity, even though they are now predominantly aged in their classes and creature, is shown by the facts of speculation about whether or not they would make the anniversary with a hit.

slur in March, adding that 2012 was a "more volatile" year for hitting the tank.

Lead singer Jagger has taken to Twitter to deny that the band would stage a show to mark the London Olympics, which get underway on July 27. "We are not playing the Olympics, but I'm looking forward to watching the games. Like we always do!" he wrote last month.

The band has also denied recent reports that they will play one last concert together at some year's Christmas Eve festival, with guitarist saying the club was "not in our plans." The quartet has one track featured in an exhibition of photos of the band opening at London's Imperial House on July 12, the anniversary of the first gig, while members of the band are expected to perform.

A new chronicle covering the history of this bond from first concept to the present day is also being showcased in September. The bond's important roles and responsibilities are spelled for comment on whether any gaps would be held to make the chronicle.

The Malays have witnessed numerous societal changes as well as an often strained relationship between immigrants Jagers and Rakhais, the core of the band. This burst up again in 2008, when Rakhais's short-story collection, "Zik," took several swings at Jagers, particularly for accepting a knighthood from Queen Elizabeth II.

Richards, dressed in his red, drag and double-breasted in the band's heyday, said he had nicknamed Jagger "Don. Majesty" and commented that the strutting lead singer had a "very indolent" Jagger's vision, the model Jerry Hall, later accused Richards of being "sexist," telling UK

"[Before this I was] assistant manager at a clothing shop... and before that I worked as a janitor in an elementary school, and I was a volunteer for the United States Postal Service. But [through] all these jobs I would just read books and play my guitar. And even though I was doing those jobs I obviously had a passion. Most musicians are usually very young, away from being a father. I'm always informed musically for that. 'We look at them as songs [and] think that's talented music so they're...'"

"Every minute or two minutes, someone is in shape or some book, someone wants to stop you and have their picture with you. Occasionally, they don't even make eye contact with you, they just want to stand next to you and get a picture, so you feel uncomfortable sighting them or actual respect of privacy, or a friend... you feel sort of feel taken advantage of by the fact that to ask what the person's name is."

Advice to aspiring singer-songwriters: "I always tell people to stay there one more day, stay there one night... each of us are born unique and have one own voice, talent. And when we spend our talent and spend our vulnerabilities and allow ourselves to be completely in front of an audience, that and no one gets to see them, when in the work. And then if you're really beginning a journey through the business, don't wait for the business to find you I would say, create a yourself and let the world look at you."
